AFL SEEKS REVERSAL OF RED AFFIDAVIT RULING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 — Joseph Padway, AFL general counsel, said today he will ask the national labor relations board to overrule NLRB counsel Robert Denham's interpretation of anti-Communist provisions in the Taft-Hartley bill.

This is our second successful season under the same management but the U. N. does not rely on box office trade.

However three guys are here with world series tickets they want to swap for lodgings in the lodge. They anticipate finer pitching from the dais.

Meanwhile, the international court of justice has had only one case since April, 1946. Most countries seem to have enough grievances for the law but not enough money for the lawyers.

But we look for a pleasant session here. Someone will move to abolish the veto and the motion will be vetoed.

Britain and the U. S. A. don't like the way Russia uses the veto but they're not quite angry enough to surrender their own black ball.

YANK TROOPS HALT YUGOSLAV TRIESTE PLANS

Americans Credited With Keeping Soldiers Out Of Guarded City

TRIESTE, Sept. 16 — An attempt by Yugoslav troops to take over the city of Trieste in violation of international agreements was disclosed today in the wake of territorial readjustments provided for in the Italian peace treaty.

A handful of 12 American troops guarding an outpost near the Adriatic port were credited officially with preventing a serious major incident.

British Maj. Gen. Terence S. Airey, commander of allied forces in Venezia Giulia, disclosed to a news conference at Castle Duino that a Yugoslav detachment 2,000 strong attempted last night to by-pass United States outpost No. 5, situated on the road leading from Gorizia to Aurisina and thence to Trieste.

GEN. AIREY was high in his praise of the American soldiers guarding the outpost.

He said that owing to their "firmness, good sense and tactful handling, unnecessary bloodshed was avoided."

The Americans, although hopelessly outnumbered, were reported to have "deployed in battle formation" when the Yugoslavs appeared. Upon their call for reinforcements, the Yugoslavs withdrew.

GEN. AIREY said that at 8 (Continued on Page Two)

TAFT SEES NO 'REAL' ECONOMY UNTIL IN 1949

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R) O., today wrote off the chances of any "real" economy by a Republican congress until 1949, when the GOP hopes to trim the pyramid of government agencies.

In a major speech on his western presidential stump tour, Taft conceded that it is "impossible" to achieve government economy by "piecemeal" cuts in appropriations.

The senate leader defended the entire Republican record of the last session of congress. In so doing he further voiced his willingness to consider amendments applying to "special sections" of the Taft-Hartley labor law or to "particular industries" like the maritime field.

His labor statement before the Los Angeles "Town Hall" club was an even broader declaration than that of last week when he said he "might consider" a closed shop modification to permit continuance of maritime union hiring halls.

Taft planned to speak at greater length on the budget and tax reductions tonight at a GOP rally which local CIO unions have indicated they may heckle with picket lines.

1,900 JAPANESE ARE MISSING OR DEAD IN FLOOD

TOKYO, Sept. 16—More than 1,900 Japanese were listed by a U. S. Army spokesman as dead or missing today in a raging flood that inundated some 500,000 homes as it swept to within 30 miles north of Tokyo.

The estimate of the number of victims was made by Lt. Col. C. P. Haward, military government chief of the Kanto district.

MERGER URGED TO BUILD FAITH IN RAILROADS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 — A Chesapeake and Ohio Railway executive told the interstate commerce commission today that an alliance between the C and O and the New York Central railroad would restore public faith in the future of railroads.

W. H. Wenneman, C and O vice president, made the statement during testimony at ICC hearings on a petition by the C and O that it be permitted to acquire a voting interest and two seats on the board of directors of the New York Central.

Wenneman declared the C and O-NYC alliance would make possible the development of "an aggressive combination" to compete with other lines and "appears to be the most feasible means of improving NYC's earning power and credit standing."

S. delegates in the assembly and to appear as a member of the political and security committee. Ex-Senator Austin is ambassador to the U. N. security council.

Americans Urged To Shake Off Complacency

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16 — General George C. Kenney urged the people of the United States today to shake themselves out of their present state of complacency.

The commander of the strategic air command warned delegates to the first annual Air Force Association convention in Columbus that the country is placing a false hope of security in atomic weapons. He asserted that such weapons "will be outlawed by international agreement, that moral reasons will prevent their use in warfare."

Kenney declared: "I'm afraid that we are lapsing into a state of complacency today. That we are building up a Maginot line for ourselves by saying, 'oh, we don't have to worry for a long time yet. We are the only nation that has the atomic bomb and it will be ten or more years before any other nation could make them and be in a position to attack us.'"

"Nothing could be more dangerous to our national safety than this head-in-the-sand attitude."

ECHOING the pleas of other speakers at the AFA convocation, the strategic air command chief called for an air power "strong enough to deter any possible enemy from attacking us." He added:

CONVICT GIVES UP AFTER VIGIL ON PEN TOWER

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16—A lone convict surrendered to guards today 18 hours after he had climbed to a precarious perch on the catwalk of a water tower 125 feet above the ground at the Ohio penitentiary in Columbus.

The convict, identified as Milford Perry, 27, of Hamilton county, made his unexplained break and climbed the tower yesterday afternoon. He had no apparent hope of escape because the tower is located in the middle of the prison yard far from any of the walls.

Perry was taken to the penitentiary hospital immediately for a checkup to determine whether he had suffered from exposure during his night-long holdout high in the air.

Warden Frank D. Henderson said that the prisoner finally gave up and started to climb down toward the guards who had been waiting for him on the ground. Climbing slowly, he took about 15 minutes to reach the ground.

The convict broke from his idle company in the prison yard yesterday afternoon, according to the warden, who was trying to learn the motive for his action.

Kenney declared that the most important defense measure was the possession of a powerful long-range striking force.

GENERAL of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and Air Force Association President James H. Doolittle warned against a breakdown in our aviation industry.

The Army chief of staff asserted that the industry must be assured a "continued healthy life because our international position in the immediate future may well be measured by its existence and productive capacity."

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE FACES WOMAN DRIVER

Manslaughter charge was filed Monday afternoon in the court of Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland against Mrs. Jean Scelavi, 32, Charleston, W. Va., driver of one of the autos in the Sunday highway crash eight miles southeast of Circleville which snuffed out the life of William Yowler, 42, Springfield auto dealer.

The affidavit was sworn to by State Highway Patrolman L. G. Ridenour who said that Mrs. Scelavi, driving south on State Route 159, failed to heed the stop sign at the intersection of State Route 56 and her car crashed against the auto driven southeast on Route 56 by Mr. Yowler.

Mrs. Scelavi was in White Cross hospital at Columbus, Tuesday, suffering from back injuries received in the traffic tragedy, and no date for her arraignment before Justice Eveland has been set.

Four other persons in the Yowler machine and three others in the Scelavi auto were injured in the crash. Two were released from Berger hospital after emergency treatment and the other five were taken to the Columbus hospital.

Patrolman Ridenour filed the manslaughter charge after a conference with County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins.

CHERRY TREE BLOOMING SECOND TIME THIS YEAR

Blossoms on a cherry tree at the home of Mrs. W. H. Cline, Route 3 Circleville, in Circleville township, Tuesday heralded the arrival of a second bearing of cherries in 1947.

Mrs. Cline's son, Samuel R. Cline, 363 East Mount street, to prove the unusual two-crop-per-year tree, delivered some twigs including blossoms and maturing cherries to the office of The Circleville Herald.

GRAIN PRICES DROP SHARPLY

Government Request For Increased Margins Felt At Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 — Grain prices skidded sharply on the Chicago board of trade today under the impact of government request for increased margins and down payments in grain futures transactions.

Mid-way in today's trading wheat was 2½ to 5½ cents below yesterday's close.

Corn prices, too hit the skids. September corn, which yesterday hit an all-time high of $2.65¾ a bushel was down 5 cents to $2.60¾ at mid-session.

September wheat was selling for $2.74¾ a bushel. September oats were down 3½ cents to $1.17½ a bushel.

VETERAN TRADERS attributed the break in grain prices to the government's proposal that grain margins be doubled. Present margin requirements on the Chicago board of trade are 45 cents a bushel on wheat and corn, equal to about 16 and 17 per cent, respectively.

The board of directors of the exchange are scheduled to meet later this afternoon to consider the proposal.

But most traders, an International News Service survey showed, have already made up their minds on the proposal.

They are almost solidly against it.

MANY SAID they saw no need for increasing margins. They contended that the government already holds the "whip hand" in the exchange through its support price program.

Some traders pointed out that the proposal would cut the volume of trading, but would not affect prices.

CHS BAND TO VISIT JACKSON APPLE FESTIVAL

Circleville high school band members will leave the city at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday to participate in the annual Apple Festival at Jackson.

During the afternoon the band will play some numbers, then march in the parade scheduled Wednesday night. Going with the band will be the big pumpkin which advertises the Circleville Pumpkin Show, October 22-25.

Robert G. Coville, who arranged for the band's trip, said Tuesday that anyone going to Jackson Wednesday who wished to take some of the band members should contact him at the Court house.

Jackson high school band will participate here in the band festival, one of the feature events of the Pumpkin Show.

GRAVE WARNING SOUNDED WHEN DELEGATES MEET

Provisional President Says Peace Is Biggest Task Of All Mankind

FLUSHING MEADOWS, N. Y., Sept. 16—The second general assembly of the United Nations convened at Flushing Meadows today amid grave warnings that "the moment is crucial" and that it is up to the UN to "organize peace or hasten war."

The one thousand delegates, painfully conscious of the sharp clash between the United States and Soviet Russia as reflected in the double veto wielded by Andrei Gromyko last night, accepted the danger prophecies practically in silence.

Provisional President Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil sounded the opening call to a common peace effort at 10:11 a. m. (EST) and immediately after Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York struck the same keynote.

At 10:41 a. m., the fifty-five nation body adjourned until 1:30 p. m. when the president was to be chosen by secret ballot.

Aranha emphatically asserted that even though a ten-year period of doubts and insecurity is in sight, the idea of peace is the uppermost task of U. N. and of mankind.

Dr. Aranha skipped all fanfare and ceremony and hit hard at the crux of the world's common worry by stating:

"We all desire peace. There is a single road to peace, however, which all must follow. Peace is one and indivisible. The work that has begun in San Francisco must culminate in New York, here at the United Nations. For us there is no dilemma nor choice of issue."

"The task is clear and irrefutable. The world that is present here can become divided only through lack of understanding among men, through the misgovernment of peoples or through failure on our part to meet world expectations. The natural and historic trend in man destinies is always toward unity and solidarity."

"This, then, is the work that lies ahead for us. We must carry on with a full understanding of the responsibilities involved and with a determination born of the will to survive."

PURINA PLANT HERE LEADING SAFETY DRIVE

Circleville's plant is pacing the national Ralston Purina organization in a campaign aimed at reduction of accidents to workers.

A year ago a goal of only two accidents per 100,000 man working hours was established for Circleville. Monday, George H. Steel, safety director for Ralston, came to the city from St. Louis to praise the local plant personnel for operating 379 days, or a total of 217,138 man hours, without a single loss time accident.

Workers assembled in the plant recreation room to hear a brief talk by Mr. Steel as well as commendation from J. R. McCann, company fire prevention engineer from St. Louis. An insurance company representative presented a certificate of merit. St. Louis is having cast a special bronze trophy that will be presented to the local plant soon.

Jay Clark presided at the meeting and with Vaden Couch, general manager, praised the workers for their fine record. Lee Cook, who headed the general plant safety committee, was commended for his excellent showing.

Truman Facing Demands For Food Price Relief

By International News Service
Washington officials are preparing today to ask President Truman to take strong and immediate action on the food price situation when he returns to the capital from Brazil late this week.

The alarming increase in the cost of living at home and the threat of famine abroad will be the top problems confronting Mr. Truman.

Clark Clifford, special assistant to the President is reportedly preparing a comprehensive report to Mr. Truman on the increasingly critical food situation which has resulted in bipartisan demands for voluntary rationing.

It is expected in Washington that the President will be asked by cabinet officers and other high level advisers to make a nationwide appeal to Americans, perhaps in a radio broadcast, to tighten their belts of their own volition.

LEADERS of both major political parties joined in calling for voluntary rationing as the best method of halting dangerous price rises and making food available for shipment to overseas areas threatened by the spectre of starvation.

An attempt to stabilize domestic food prices was made Monday night when the commodity exchange authority asked the chief grain exchanges to double initial margins on speculative purchases and lessen the danger of a "boom and bust situation."

NO FROST HERE AS MERCURY DIPS TO 44 DEGREES

Although a lot of Pickaway counties, chiefly farmers, insisted that Jack Frost paid a visit to this area during the early morning hours Tuesday, County Agricultural Agent Larry A. Best and spokesmen for the Farm Bureau insisted there was no frost.

They declared that a heavy dew was mistaken for frost and that no crop damage was done. Low temperature early Tuesday was 44 degrees above zero it was stated by Charles Carter, Circleville weather observer.

Forecasters predicted another cool night with cloudy and warmer temperatures Wednesday.

RED CROSS SET TO HELP OUT IF HURRICANE HITS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—National headquarters of the American Red Cross reported today that disaster relief efforts have been alerted for possible hurricane emergency duty at more than a score of Atlantic coast points from Florida to Maine.

Red Cross general field representatives were being kept advised of the progress of the hurricane, which at 11 a. m. (EST) was reported some 200 miles off the Florida coast and veering slowly toward the mainland.

Weather forecasters said the hurricane remained nearly stationary during the night. This morning it had slowed from its original 20-mile-an-hour pace to five miles an hour along a north-westward course.

Jacksonville is almost dead center in the storm's present path. As the storm movement slowed, its area of attending gales and strong winds expanded to cover a diameter of 400 miles.

Strong winds and heavy seas were forecast for the Florida east coast this afternoon, with hurricane winds some distance offshore.

Storm warnings were hoisted at 9:15 a. m. from West Palm Beach, Fla., to Cape Hatteras, N. C.

REV. ALBERT IS SPEAKER FOR KIWANIS CLUB

"Three R's" was the subject of an interesting address by the Rev. H. R. Albert, pastor of the First Lutheran church, Columbus, at the Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening in Hanley's.

The speaker listed fundamentals of living today as "religion, response and responsibility." He declared "God has been pushed into the background with man the all-important being." He said a "vital religion" was important in progress. "Response, gratitude for people who help, appreciation instead of cynicism, justice to others, not always expecting help from others and giving none are needed in the world today" the speaker said.

The Rev. Mr. Albert insisted on "a sense of duty, self discipline, everyone taking responsibility instead of trying to get someone else to do everything."

The speaker was introduced by A. W. Bosworth.

Nominating committee appointed by President J. Wray Henry submitted the following slate of officers for the election to be held September 29:

For president: Roscoe Warren; vice president, G. Guy Campbell and David Goldschmidt; treasurer, Paul Hang and Vernon Hawkes; directors, Luther Bower, Robert McCarty, Forrest Croman, John Keiskell, Donald D. Henkle, H. K. Lanman, C. O. CHINESE VICE PRESIDENT HITS U. S. POLICIES

NANKING, Sept. 16—China's vice president Sun Fo sharply assailed Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's criticism of Chinese governmental shortcomings today and described his country as the "victim of a struggle for dominance between the United States and Russia."

He termed China's civil war a mere "preliminary struggle" and warned that if Communism prevails in China, "all other countries in the Far East will follow suit."

Sun Fo, who formerly served in Moscow as Chinese ambassador to the Soviet Union, declared Russia has a "definite policy toward China," whereas he characterized American policy as obscured by "much confusion."

Criticizing Wedemeyer's recent "farewell" statement, Sun Fo charged it manifested "too much interference in the domestic affairs of China."

p. m. yesterday he received a Yugoslavian emissary who handed him a letter from the commander of the Yugoslav fourth army, a Gen. Daniel Leikic.

This letter announced that Yugoslav troops would march into Trieste and would be established there.

Airey immediately attempted to make contact with Leikic but failed. At 3 a. m. local time, the Yugoslavs, under cover of darkness, appeared at the outpost, some 28 miles north of Trieste.

The British general said that Yugoslav officials eventually agreed that the matter should be taken up through diplomatic channels in Washington, London and Belgrade. He added:

"I received a message from Gen. Leikic saying he had accepted our proposal that no march be made into Trieste."

UNDER THE terms of the peace treaty, Yugoslavia has no right to establish contingents in the free territory of Trieste until a governor has been nominated. In the meantime, American and English military officials are to carry on.

Another incident of a minor nature occurred at outpost 115 south of Gorizia, where Yugoslav forces violated the provisional boundary line, crossing it and occupying two houses.

The menacing incident near Trieste occurred while allied troops were quitting their positions along the Morgan line ahead of schedule as Yugoslav forces moved up prematurely to the new frontier positions provided by the treaty.

Nominating committee appointed by President J. Wray Henry submitted the following slate of officers for the election to be held September 29:

For president Roscoe Warren; vice president, G. Guy Campbell and David Goldschmidt; treasurer, Paul Hang and Vernon Hawkes; directors, Luther Bower, Robert McCarty, Forrest Croman, John Keiskell, Donald D. Henkle, H. K. Lanman, C. O. CHINESE VICE PRESIDENT HITS U. S. POLICIES

NANKING, Sept. 16—China's vice president Sun Fo sharply assailed Lt. Gen Albert C. Wedemeyer's criticism of Chinese governmental shortcomings today and described his country as the "victim of a struggle for dominance between the United States and Russia."

He termed China's civil war a mere "preliminary struggle" and warned that if Communism prevails in China, "all other countries in the Far East will follow suit."

Sun Fo, who formerly served in Moscow as Chinese ambassador to the Soviet Union, declared Russia has a "definite policy toward China," whereas he characterized American policy as obscured by "much confusion."

Criticizing Wedemeyer's recent "farewell" statement, Sun Fo charged it manifested "too much interference in the domestic affairs of China."

forceful in his address. He declared:

"The aviation industry is on its last legs. Many aircraft manufacturers will have to go out of existence if they aren't given more work to do."

Doolittle offered as a partial solution to the problem the formation of a citizens committee for research similar to the Manhattan project which developed the atomic bomb. He also urged that the too-small Army Air Forces be expanded with the resulting plane orders keeping the manufacturers from folding up.

EISENHOWER said that the United States possessed a commanding lead in its ability to produce and perform. He added:

"For our own security, we either maintain that position or we relapse into a potential target of aerial destruction. . . . No real security resides in a second-best air force."

U. S. TRYING TO COMBAT RUSSIAN TALK IN EUROPE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—The Army civil affairs division disclosed today that its reorientation program in Europe is doing as much to prevent the spread of Communism as it is to eradicate the remnants of Fascism.

Col. Edgar Erskine Hume of the reorientation branch, explained that the United States, in the occupied zones of Germany and Austria, is attempting through radio, movies, magazines and newspapers to present a clear picture of life in the United States.

This presentation finds itself frequently in direct contradiction to Russian propaganda, which endeavors to show only the unsatisfactory side of American life.

p. m. yesterday he received a Yugoslavian emissary who handed him a letter from the commander of the Yugoslav fourth army, a Gen. Daniel Leikic.

This letter announced that Yugoslav troops would march into Trieste and would be established there.

Airey immediately attempted to make contact with Leikic but failed. At 3 a. m. local time, the Yugoslavs, under cover of darkness, appeared at the outpost, some 28 miles north of Trieste.

The British general said that Yugoslav officials eventually agreed that the matter should be taken up through diplomatic channels in Washington, London and Belgrade. He added:

"I received a message from Gen. Leikic saying he had accepted our proposal that no march be made into Trieste."

UNDER THE terms of the peace treaty, Yugoslavia has no right to establish contingents in the free territory of Trieste until a governor has been nominated. In the meantime, American and English military officials are to carry on.

Another incident of a minor nature occurred at outpost 115 south of Gorizia, where Yugoslav forces violated the provisional boundary line, crossing it and occupying two houses.

The menacing incident near Trieste occurred while allied troops were quitting their positions along the Morgan line ahead of schedule as Yugoslav forces moved up prematurely to the new frontier positions provided by the treaty.

GAS TAX CHANGE TERMED UNFAIR BY FARM BUREAU

Legislative Director Of Co-Op Urges 'Proper'
Fund Distribution

"If the proposed gasoline tax amendment passes in the November election, and nullifies the liquid fuel tax, there will be approximately $28,000,000 less for road purposes unless the state legislature immediately enacts an additional one-cent gas tax for road purposes," according to D. R. Stanfield, legislative director of the Ohio Farm Bureau.

"And if the constitutional amendment passes and does not nullify the liquid fuel tax, and that tax is distributed on the same basis as the three-cent gas tax, counties and townships would still receive more money for roads under the present system with full matching funds," he declared.

STANFIELD, whose organization fought the issue last year, termed the proposal "unfair and impractical." He tagged the amendment as "an attempt by certain groups to place gasoline in a special category all by itself. If every other group in Ohio pursued the same policy as the proponents of this amendment, our state legislature would be severely handicapped in applying the revenue of the state to the needs of the state."

"The proponents are expecting a decline in state revenue and they want to be sure that gasoline is protected from further taxation. Why should farmers support such a move when it exposes real estate to increased taxes?"

The Farm Bureau spokesman pointed out that proper distribution of road funds is needed rather than a constitutional amendment. Of the 753 villages in Ohio, he said, 305 have but one street which is covered by state, federal or county highways. These villages are receiving money for road purposes for which they have no need.

He further pointed out that of the 1,338 townships in the state, 335 have less than five miles of township roads and 103 have less than one mile. Yet every township in the state at the present time receives exactly the same amount of money, a sum of $2,500 from the three-cent gas tax and $747.96 from the general revenue fund.

A redistribution of funds whereby the townships needing money would get additional consideration would solve the problem, Stanfield believes.

HARRIMAN ASKS AMERICANS TO EAT LESS MEAT

CLEVELAND, Sept. 16 — W. Averell Harriman, secretary of commerce, called upon the American people today to voluntarily eat less meat to conserve wheat for hungry Europe.

At a meeting of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce and the Cleveland World Trade organization, Harriman declared the alternatives to such voluntary action are:

1. Bid up the price of wheat "to a point where it will not be profitable to feed it to animals."
 2. Reconstitute government controls.
- The secretary said the first alternative is impractical because "the price of wheat and animal products might rise so high that there would be a natural demand of labor for increased wages, and we would be off again on another spiral of price increases in all fields."
- He said "adequate" governmental controls "could hardly be established in time to be effective during this crop year."

Pointing out that the United States this year produced the greatest wheat crop of all time, Harriman assured the public that "there will be an adequate supply of meat and other animal products if we are content to consume them at a reasonable level."

VETS' REPORTS TO BE FEWER

VA Changes System For GI
Students To State
Their Earnings

Veterans studying full time in colleges and universities under the G.I. bill no longer will have to make periodic reports of outside earnings, it was announced today by officials at the Veterans Administration Ohio-Michigan-Kentucky branch office in Columbus.

VA adopted the new policy nation-wide after a survey showed that not more than one per cent of the veterans in full time college training reported any difference between their estimated earnings and actual income during a school year.

Veterans entering full-time training in institutions of higher learning under the G.I. Bill this Fall will estimate their earnings from productive labor for the full period of their enrollment when they register. The amount of their subsistence allowances will be based on these estimates.

The rate of payment will be authorized for the full enrollment period certified to VA by the institutions and will remain unchanged unless subsequent evidence justifies an adjustment.

Previously, veterans estimated their earnings when they enrolled. They then were required to report their actual earnings once each semester for that period. These reports were checked against the amount of subsistence authorized to determine if the combined earnings and subsistence were within the limits prescribed by law of $175 a month for veterans without dependents and $200 for veterans with one or more dependents.

VA said the new plan is part of a program to streamline procedures for paying subsistence allowances to student veterans. It is designed to save considerable time and money by eliminating the need for processing thousands of report forms during the coming school year.

A NEW JERSEY paper company and officers of its workers' C.I.O. local have jointly announced a new profit-sharing agreement which is expected to increase the wage earner's income by about 20 per cent. Union officials say the agreement accomplishes more than twenty years of collective bargaining could gain, and that it marks a new phase in labor-management history.

Those who think they have the right to grouse against the wiles of management or the mulishness of labor are obliged to cheer at this example of a successful, constructive does not envisage a boost in prices. At least that is to be hoped.

Just what happens to the consumer in this anticipation of an industrial paradise is not clear. Presumably the new agreement settlement.

All that is required to make the picture complete is to take the consumer, in effect, into the partnership. He should have a share of the "profits" too, for he is a third element which makes an economy click.

MEDICAL DETECTIVES

WORKING quietly in various sections of the country are serious men-in-white known as epidemiologists, or experts in epidemic diseases. Chief interest of this small band is to crack the mystery of how infantile paralysis spreads and why it suddenly breaks out in certain localities. So far it is not known how the virus of the disease causes infection or how it is carried.

Much knowledge about this devastating sickness, however, has been amassed. All evidence, according to research authorities, points to the gastro-intestinal tract as the portal of entry and exit for the virus, and as its reservoir. But the cause of its start remains an unbroken scientific secret.

The clinicians working on this medical mystery pursue their unspectacular investigations, follow through day after day their patient work. Few acclaim their devotion. Yet their findings, little by little, will eventually be one of man's boons, for surely this knotty problem will yield as have other equally puzzling challenges.

Observers who call Americans an impatient people will eventually have to explain why so many baseball fans are willing to stand in line all night to get seats for the world's series.

Thinking, in spite of tradition, isn't dangerous. In fact, it's just the opposite.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a day of rain, so without the usual outdoor to-do did partake leisurely of coffee and then head downtown. Passed trucks heading away with the last of the fair mid-way paraphernalia. A good fair this year—better than last year, and an even better one promised for next year. Met Tom Renick and congratulated his committee on the three-night horse show which was one of the big attractions. The exhibitors all were pleased and promised to return in 1948 and bring others with them.

Your should hear the race horse men talk about your fairgrounds. They have nothing except praise for the track and the manner in which it is run. Some of them say that this is the best half mile track in the country and that one day it will be drawing America's top horses.

Of course we were handicapped somewhat this year by the lack of buildings for exhibits, but that lack will be much less next season if the fair board gets the money it should have. That board is one of the most effective ever organized for any purpose in the county. It gets things done and a lot for its money.

See by the prints that our officials finally decided to ask a three mill levy for the Children's home. That means $150,000. If it is spent at the present site then it will be used as a stop gap and not for permanency. That our present facilities for the care of unfortunate boys and girls are inadequate is generally understood. As a matter of fact some of the conditions border on the disgraceful. The State of Ohio has issued an order that conditions must be improved immediately. But, since it is our money that is to be spent, our problem of today and tomorrow, it is likely that we are in a position to tell the state that we are not jumping in the dark and that we really wish to solve the problem, not spend money for temporary relief.

The scrivener has recommended that a farm be bought and a new children's home be erected. The present farm is no farm at all. It is so hilly that the children even lack an adequate playground. And as for producing the foodstuffs the institution needs it is an utter failure and always will be. A small farm of producing acres could and would save money. It should be no larger than necessary to provide the needs of the home.

The scrivener now recommends that the proper officials select a committee, composed of a representative of each township, and that this committee make a survey of the present home and its possibilities and also the possibilities of a new site together with the cost of building. The cost of operation of the two plants also should be given serious consideration as well as possible future needs. And this committee, after proper consideration, should make a recommendation that our officials should follow. The recommendation, because of the composition of the committee, would be the recommendation of all the people of all the parts of the county. The scrivener wishes no place on that committee, for he admits that he already is biased and just can not see the outlay of a great sum of money on a manner that will be not one single step in the direction of solving a serious problem, but would merely be a sop to the state officials who demand immediate action.

The three mill levy would raise money available only for use at the present children's home site. The voters should turn thumbs down on the proposal and await reports on a full study of the problem.

DIET AND HEALTH

Neglect of Child's First Teeth Means Trouble Later

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MANY parents believe that neglect of the child's first teeth does not matter because he is going to lose them anyway. There was never a more mistaken idea.

In the first place, early care of teeth defects is the best possible insurance against the occurrence of serious trouble later. In the second, too early loss of the first teeth may cause the permanent set to come in crooked. Furthermore, infections in any of the child's teeth may become a source of danger to his general health.

A Real Effort

For these reasons parents should make a real effort to prevent tooth decay in their children. If it occurs in spite of precautions, the child should be taken to the dentist at once.

In preventing decay, among other things, it is important to teach the child proper tooth-brush habits, since clean teeth decay less easily. A well-balanced diet is also a cardinal factor, as important to the condition of the teeth as to all other parts of the body.

Prompt Treatment

Even when one of the first teeth decay, prompt and proper treatment will usually keep it alive. First of all, the dentist will take an X-ray of the tooth. This is done to determine the extent of the tooth decay and to show whether or not it is possible to save the tooth.

If there is toothache, the dentist determines whether or not the pain occurs at night or when the child is lying down or whether it is present for just a few seconds after eating and whether hot or cold food or drinks, or cold water causes pain.

Outlook Is Bad

The outlook for saving the tooth is bad if the tooth hurts at night when the child is lying down, if hot or cold drinks cause pain, or if the tooth is sore when pressure is applied, for that means destruction is far advanced.

The outlook for saving the tooth is good if pain occurs only for a few seconds after eating, if hot and cold air causes pain, or if the tooth is not sore to pressure.

Vitality Test

If it is difficult to determine whether or not the tooth can be saved, the soft decayed material under the enamel should be removed. The cavity is dried with warm water and a solution of ammoniacal silver nitrate is applied. This is left in contact for at least a minute, and then a substance known as eugenol is used. Then the cavity is filled.

If the decay has penetrated more deeply, and it is not certain that the tooth can be saved, the treatment is carried out in the same way and a temporary filling is put into the cavity for several months. Then, if X-rays and vitality tests later show a reasonable chance for saving the tooth, the permanent filling may be put in.

Parents owe it to the child to do everything possible to keep his teeth strong and save them from decay.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. S.: I would appreciate it greatly if you would inform me how to get over nervousness. I find it very difficult to go on with my work.

Answer: Nervousness is an indefinite term. It may refer to irritability, lack of control of the emotions, or to a feeling of anxiety and fear. The best thing for you to do is to have a study made by a specialist in diseases of the nervous system to determine just what disorder is present.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

SCRAP THOSE OLD RULES

A PLAYER who expects to get anywhere would do well to scrap the old Whist rules which do not apply to bridge, with a dummy in sight. Two of them which have caused dull-witted contract players thousands of points are "third hand high" and "don't finesse against your partner." Common sense is a better guide than any such rules. It tells you to violate both of them when you see in the dummy a secondary honor which threatens to be a side entry for the dummy's long suit, and you hold over it a higher honor. Then your job is to hold your own honor until the dummy's has been played and can be killed by it.

You are probably wondering where North found the basis for his bid. To do it, you would have to look both right and left and consider that his estimate of the defenders' playing skill was worth at least an ace or so to him. In all of which his valuation proved extremely conservative.

West led his heart 3, on which South played low from dummy. East now remembered the two rules about third-hand high and not finessing against his partner, so put in the K, which the A killed. From there in it was a breeze. This play did more than present South a third trick in the heart suit which figured to be worth only two, as it also gave him a certain entry to the dummy to help bring in the diamonds.

West had enough brains to let the diamond Q pass through, then took the 9 with his A. His heart return enabled South to skip along then and get an extra trick, with one in spades, three in hearts, four in diamonds and two in clubs when the finesse worked.

If East had properly held up his K on the first trick, South could never have scored more than one trick in diamonds and two in hearts, plus an inadequate number of black card tricks, and could have been defeated several by any likely line of play.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

"THERE SHOULD be some sort of law, rigidly enforced, against girls like you," Greg said heavily. "Girls who look soft and downy, like day-old baby chicks, and who are hard as nails underneath."

"Thinking that of me, I wonder you're even worried that there is any possibility of your—falling in love with me," Gail told him out of her bitter hurt.

"That's the devil of it," he admitted. "It's all so completely illogical. But then I never heard anybody claim that there was any logic about love. You've—well, got under my skin. I can't keep you out of my thoughts. I watch you working and I know you're driving yourself and that you ache with weariness, and yet you're such a spunky little devil that you keep going. And I want to take you in my arms and hold you close and rumple that shining silken hair of yours and kiss you—"

He got up suddenly and stood over her, his hands jammed into fists deep in his pockets. A quivering moonbeam slid through the thick leaves and lay for a moment on his face, showing her the bitterness in his eyes, the thin, taut line that was his mouth.

"This," he flung at her savagely, "is where you tip back your lovely head and laugh and laugh— Well, why aren't you laughing?"

She clenched her hands tightly together and was grateful for the darkness that hid her betraying face from him.

"Because—I—don't think it's f-funny," she stammered faintly. He leaned a little closer toward her and the moonlight flew away from his taut face and once more it was only a pale glimmer.

"You don't think it's funny that I love you so much I'm miserable—and that I want to hold you in my arms and kiss you?" His voice was rough and uneven.

"I—just think it's funny that you d-d-don't—if you want to—" Her voice was a small shaken thread of sound.

For a moment he was very still, scarcely seeming to breathe, and then she heard him say deep under his breath, "Oh, good Lord!"

But when his arms went out to her, she stepped into them like a bird going into its nest. They closed hard about her and her own were tight about him. And as she lifted her lovely mouth for his kiss, she gave a small, soft smothered laugh.

"Oh, darling, darling," she whispered, and then his mouth claimed her own. All the world seemed to hold its breath and her heart climbed up into her throat.

shaking her slender body with its throbbing. Whether it was minutes or hours later neither of them knew or cared. But the ecstasy of that first kiss was so exquisite that it could only endure for so long, and when at last Greg raised his head a little and looked down at her, Gail could feel the trembling of his body close against her own.

"I can't believe it," he said huskily, his tone awed. "This can't be really happening. I've dreamed about it so long—thought about nothing else, and now I'm—dazed."

"Isn't it the craziest thing in the world, darling?" she laughed, her laughter a warm caress. "Here I've been going around with my heart in a sling because I thought you hated and despised me. I tried like the dickens not to mind, I even tried to kid myself that I wasn't falling in love with you after all."

"We've been a couple of fools," Greg admitted. "I should have known from the first that the girl I thought was Gail Prentice didn't really exist, except in my own imagination. I've been building up a hate against her ever since I first heard of her, but you—well, no matter how hard I tried to deny it, I knew from the first that it was all up with me the minute you got off the train."

They considered that for a long, cherished moment, and then she said eagerly, "Let's go tell Father and Kate."

"Hi, wait a minute," he protested; but she only laughed and went running across the bare ground toward the house, and he had no choice but to follow her.

As they came into the lamplit living room, Charles sat with a week-old county newspaper, while Kate mended socks on the other side of the table.

They looked up as Gail and Greg came in, and Gail, her hand firmly in Greg's, said radiantly, "Father, Kate—I got him! Isn't it wonderful? He didn't have a chance. I stalked him until he fell right into my trap!"

Greg said, "Why, you shameless—"

Charles grinned warmly and said, "That's wonderful, chick, but I hope you're not expecting us to be surprised."

Gail caught her breath and had the feeling of stepping down in the dark and missing the next stair.

"You mean you expected—"

"I mean you and Greg were so persistently feuding that I felt pretty sure you were both fighting a mutual attraction and that neither of you was old enough or experienced enough to know that was fatal!" said Charles. "I'm glad, Gail. Take good care of her, Greg."

"We're going to be married right away," said Gail sunnily, as though there could be no possible question about that.

Alarmed, Greg said swiftly, "Hi, wait up—we're not going to be married at all! The idea is ridiculous!"

Gail rounded on him, outraged. "Are you trying to get out of it? Well, you won't, so you might as well save yourself the arguing."

"Let's be sensible, Gail. You, Uncle Charles, and Kate—help me to make her see how preposterous the whole thing is. Why, good grief, I couldn't keep her in nylon-socks," Greg pointed out ruefully.

"Then I'll wear rayons—or bob-socks. You're just being silly," said Gail hotly. "You just don't want to marry me." Her voice stumbled and fell to silence beneath the look in his eyes and for a long, long moment she was very still, her eyes tangled with his. It was as though she had stepped into a warm, fragrant bath, for happiness flowed over her in a rich flood.

She moved to him and his arm went about her. Her face lifted to his. It was as though they two stood alone, as though Charles and Kate no longer existed.

"You're such a blessed silly darling," she told him softly. "Thinking that I'd want to marry anybody else in the world, Greg, the only real, genuine, deep-down happiness I've ever known has been since I came here. I wouldn't want anything else—no ever! I just want to be your wife, Greg—to try to be as much like Kate as I can."

"I don't think the man your father is, Gail. Don't think I could swing it the way he has."

"But you will be, learning from him," she cut in swiftly. "And Kate will help me—and we'll be so happy that nothing else in the world will matter."

Greg looked at Charles and there was tormenting questioning in his eyes.

"Uncle Charles?" He put all his uneasiness, his anxiety into the two words.

"You have to make the decision yourself, Greg," he said gently. "But if you want my blessing, you have it. And my approval."

"There!" said Gail radiantly. "Now try to get out of marrying me if you dare! You've got a shotgun, haven't you, Father?"

Charles' eyes twinkled a little. "It's been years since I've fired it, but I could practice up a bit if you think there is any necessity," he promised.

Endeavor to avert quarrels and impetuous conduct; then a good measure of success will be enjoyed. The child who is born on this date will be more fortunate if born early in the day. Sound ideas, and well-organized plans should be mobilized for the attainment of the highest possible goals, aims and objectives, yet the final issues may be negative by some peculiar coup or curious entanglement. Wild, erratic, even sinister impulse may flare from over-wrought emotions or imbalance of nervous tensions or mental quirks. Sensible and sane handling of critical situations could insure a day of spectacular success, including drama and romantic adventure as well.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are urged to marshal all their faculties, forces, skills and talents, supported by all available assets and resources, personal popularity and the influence of those in high places, for the purpose of concentrating these in an effort to attain the most cherished hopes, wishes and desires. All are under splendid stimuli and promise for expansion, progress, and sustained effort with determination to reach major objectives, no matter the scope of such productive purpose. However, unless the most honest endeavor, soundest principles and plans, are thoroughly organized and executed, strange or subtle factors might shatter such noble dreams.

serious trouble later. In the second,
too early loss of the first teeth may cause the permanent set to come in crooked. Furthermore, infections in any of the child's teeth may become a source of danger to his general health.

A Real Effort

For these reasons parents should make a real effort to prevent tooth
decay in their children. If it occurs in spite of precautions, the child should be taken to the dentist at once.

In preventing decay, among other things, it is important to teach the child proper tooth-brush habits,
since clean teeth decay less easily.
A well-balanced diet is also a cardinal factor, as important to the condition of the teeth as to all other parts of the body.

Prompt Treatment

Even when one of the first teeth
decay, prompt and proper treatment will usually keep it alive. First of all, the dentist will take an X-ray of the tooth. This is done to determine the extent of the tooth decay and
to show whether or not it is possible to save the tooth.

If there is toothache, the dentist
determines whether or not the pain
occurs at night or when the child
is lying down or whether it is present for just a few seconds after eating and whether hot or cold food
or drinks, or cold weather causes
pain.

Outlook Is Bad

The outlook for saving the tooth
is bad if the tooth hurts at night
when the child is lying down, if hot

or cold drinks cause pain, or if the tooth is sore when pressure is applied, for that means destruction is far advanced.

The outlook for saving the tooth
is good if pain occurs only for a few seconds after eating, if not and cold air causes pain, or if the tooth
is not sore to pressure.

Vitality Test

If it is difficult to determine whether or not the tooth can be saved, what is known as a vitality test may be helpful. This test is carried out by means of an electrical current in some cases.

If it is thought that the tooth can be saved, the soft decayed material
under the enamel should be removed. The cavity is dried with warm water and a solution of am-moniacal silver nitrate is applied.
This is left in contact for at least
a minute, and then a substance known as eugenol is used. Then the cavity is filled.

If the decay has penetrated more deeply, and it is not certain that the tooth can be saved, the treatment is carried out in the same way
and a temporary filling is put into the cavity for several months. Then,
if X-rays and vitality tests later
show a reasonable chance for saving the tooth, the permanent filling
may be put in.

Parents owe it to the child to do everything possible to keep his teeth
strong and save them from decay.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
P. S. I would appreciate it greatly
if you would inform me how to get over nervousness. I find it very difficult to go on with my work.

Answer: Nervousness is an indefinite term. It may refer to irritable, lack of control of the emotions, or to a feeling of anxiety and fear. The best thing for you to do is to have a study made by a specialist in diseases of the nervous system to determine just what disorder is present.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SCRAP THOSE OLD RULES

A PLAYER who expects to get anywhere would do well to scrap
the old Whist rules which do not apply to bridge, with a dummy in sight. Two of them which have caused dull-witted contract players thousands of points are
"third hand high" and "don't finesse against your partner." Common sense is a better guide than any such rules. It tells you to violate both of them when you see in the dummy a secondary honor which threatens to be a side entry for the dummy's long suit, and you hold over it a higher honor. Then your job is to hold your own honor until the dummy's has been played and can be killed by it.

West led his heart 3, on which South played low from dummy.
East now remembered the two rules about third-hand high and
not finessing against his partner,
so put in the K, which the A killed. From there in it was a breeze. This play did more than present South a third trick in the heart suit which figured to be worth only two, as it also gave him a certain entry to the dummy
to help bring in the diamonds.

West had enough brains to let the diamond Q pass through, then took the 9 with his A. His heart return enabled South to skip
along then and get an extra trick,
with one in spades, three in hearts, four in diamonds and two in clubs when the finesse worked.

If East had properly held up his K on the first trick, South
could never have scored more than one trick in diamonds and
two in hearts, plus an inadequate
number of black card tricks, and could have been defeated several
by any likely line of play.

You are probably wondering where North found the basis for

to look both right and left and consider that his estimate of the defenders' playing skill was worth at least an ace or so to him. In all of which his valuation proved extremely conservative.

PEGGY DERN

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

"THERE SHOULD be some sort
of law, rigidly enforced, against girls like you," Greg said heavily.
"Girls who look soft and downy,
like day-old baby chicks, and who are hard as nails underneath."

"Thinking that of me, I wonder you're even worried that there is any possibility of your falling in love with me," Gail told him out of her bitter hurt.

"That's the devil of it," he admitted. "It's all so completely illogical. But then I never heard anybody claim that there was any logic about love. You've—well, got under my skin. I can't keep you out of my thoughts. I watch you working and I know you're driving yourself and that you ache with weariness, and yet you're such a spunky little devil that you keep going. And I want to take you in my arms and hold you close and rumple that shining silken hair of yours and kiss you—"

He got up suddenly and stood
over her, his hands jammed into pockets deep in his pockets. A quivering moonbeam slid through the thick leaves and lay for a moment
on his face, showing her the bitterness in his eyes, the thin, taut
line that was his mouth.

"This," he flung at her savagely,
"is where you tip back your lovely
head and laugh and laugh— Well,
why aren't you laughing?"

She clenched her hands tightly together and was grateful for the darkness that hid her betraying
face from him.

"Because—I—don't think it's
f-funny," she stammered faintly.
He leaned a little closer toward
her and the moonlight flew away
from his taut face and once more
it was only a pale glimmer.

"You don't think it's funny that I love you so much I'm miserable
—and that I want to hold you in my arms and kiss you?" His voice was rough and uneven.

"I—just think it's funny that you d-d-don't if—if you want to—"
Her voice was a small shattering thread of sound.

For a moment he was very still,
scarcely seeming to breathe, and then she heard him say deep under his breath, "Oh, good Lord!"

But when his arms went out to her, she stepped into them like a bird going into its nest. They closed hard about her and her own were tight about him. And as she lifted her lovely mouth for his kiss, she gave a small, soft smothered laugh.

"Oh, darling, darling," she whispered, and then his mouth had claimed her own. All the world seemed to hold its breath and her heart climbed up into her throat.

Today's Horoscope

If today is your birthday, your tastes are simple, but excellent.
You are domestic and require only pleasant and harmonious surroundings and one to love and be loved. Demonstrative, impulsive and somewhat jealous, you are easy to please and should take care in choosing your mate. Act upon your own intuition during the next year rather than your inclinations. Endeavor to avert quarrels and impetuous conduct;
then a good measure of success
will be enjoyed. The child who is born on this date will be more

fortunate if born early in the day.
Nevertheless, love and domestic troubles are likely, irrespective of the time of birth. This day is good for new ventures, travel, legal,
governmental and political interests. Your efforts should prove successful. The vibrations are good.

THE planetary configurations
for this day given every sort of encouragement and inducement
for a sensible, studied, and concentrated assembling of all the factors, in the way of assets and resources, enhanced and developed by skill. Sound ideas, and well-organized plans should be mobilized for the attainment of the highest possible goals, aims and objectives, yet the final issues may be negative by some peculiar coup or curious entanglement. Wild, erratic, even sinister impulse may flare from over-wrought emotions or imbalance of nervous tensions or mental quirks. Sensible and sane handling of critical situations
could insure a day of specu-lar success, including drama and romantic adventure as well.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are urged to marshal all their fac-
ties, forces, skills and talents,
supported by all available assets
and resources, personal popularity and the influence of those in high places, for the purpose of concentrating these in an effort
to attain the most cherished hopes, wishes and desires. All are under splendid stimuli and
promise for expansion, progress,
and sustained effort with determination to reach major objectives, no matter the scope of such productive purpose. However, unless the most honest endeavor, soundest principles and plans, are thoroughly organized and executed, strange or subtle
factors might shatter such noble
dreams.

A child born on this day may possess many skills, talents and equipment for dramatic success
and prosperity in life, yet some peculiar, erratic or irresponsible
urge might prove its detriment.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a day of rain, so without the usual outdoor to-do
did partake leisurely of coffee
and then head downtown.
Passed trucks heading away
with the last of the fair midway paraphernalia. A good fair this year—better than last year, and an even better one promised for next year. Met Tom Renick and congratulated
his committee on the three-night horse show which
was one of the big attractions.
The exhibitors all were pleased and promised to return in 1948 and bring others
with them.

Your should hear the race
horse men talk about your fairgrounds. They have nothing except praise for the track
and the manner in which it is run. Some of them say that this is the best half mile track in the country and that one day it will be drawing America's top horses.

Of course we were handicapped somewhat this year by the lack of buildings for exhibits, but that lack will be much less next season if the fair board gets the money it should have. That board is one of the most effective ever organized for any purpose in the county. It gets things done
and a lot for its money.

See by the prints that our

officials finally decided to ask a three mill levy for the Children's home. That means $150,000. If it is spent at the present site then it will be used as a stop gap and not for permanency. That our present facilities for the care
of unfortunate boys and girls
are inadequate is generally understood. As a matter of fact some of the conditions
border on the disgraceful. The State of Ohio has issued an order that conditions must be improved immediately. But,
since it is our money that is to be spent, our problem of today and tomorrow, it is likely that we are in a position to tell the state that we are not jumping in the dark and that we really wish to solve the problem, not spend money for temporary relief.

The scrivener has recommended that a farm be bought and a new children's home be erected. The present farm is no farm at all. It is so hilly that the children even lack an adequate playground. And as for producing the foodstuffs
the institution needs it is an utter failure and always will be. A small farm of producing acres could and would save money. It should be no larger than necessary to provide the needs of the home.

The scrivener now recom-

mends that the proper officials
select a committee, composed of a representative of each township, and that
this committee make a survey of the present home and its possibilities and also the possibilities of a new site together with the cost of building. The cost of operation of the two plants also should be given serious consideration as well as possible future needs.
And this committee, after proper consideration, should make a recommendation that
our officials should follow.
The recommendation, because of the composition of the committee, would be the recommendation of all the people of all the parts of the county.
The scrivener wishes no place
on that committee, for he admits that he already is biased
and just can not see the outlay of a great sum of money
on a manner that will be not
one single step in the direction
of solving a serious problem,
but would merely be a sop to
the state officials who demand
immediate action.

The three mill levy would raise money available only for use at the present children's home site. The voters should turn thumbs down on the proposal and await reports on a full study of the problem.

Miss Sapp Becomes Bride Of R. C. Owens

Nuptial Vows Exchanged In Springfield

Miss Frances Elizabeth Sapp, West Mill street, became the bride of Robert Creighton Owens, East Corwin street, on Monday afternoon at half after four.

The Rev. B. B. Fleming officiated for the ceremony before a background of verdant greenery in the parsonage of the Methodist church at Springfield. Appropriate pre-nuptial musical selections were presented preceding the ceremony. Rev. Mr. Fleming is a close friend of the Sapp family and formerly lived in Bainbridge, the previous residence of the Sapp family.

The bride is the daughter of Thomas Howard Sapp, Columbus, and the late Mrs. Sapp. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Owens, East Corwin street.

The former Miss Sapp chose for her wedding an afternoon gown of gray crepe, designed with a V neckline and modified sleeves. The draped bodice extended into deep folds to form a full graceful skirt. Silver nail heads sketched in the form of flowers studded the gown. She wore a small white hat trimmed with a gray and white ostrich plume and a gray veil. Pinned at her shoulder was a burgundy orchid. To complete her costume she wore sterling silver jewelry, a gift from the bridegroom, and carried wine accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland R. Siegwald, South Court street, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom were their only attendants. Mrs. Siegwald was gowned in a deep fuchsia frock with accents of black. Her flowers were white gladioli.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. Sapp was host at a reception and dinner in the Shawnee hotel, Springfield. Tall white tapers flanked a large three tiered wedding cake surrounded with maiden hair fern on the bride's table. The guest table was centered with a crystal bowl of pink asters, white gladioli and sprigs of fern, and tall burning white tapers.

Guests at the wedding, reception and dinner besides the wedding party were John G. Boggs Sr., Miss Margaret Boggs, John G. Boggs, Jr., Mrs. W. P. Hartman, Mr. Owens, Miss Patty Owens and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Moore, Circleville.

Both the new Mr. and Mrs. Owens were graduated from Circleville high school. The bride is affiliated with Sigma Phi Gamma sorority. At the present she is associated with the Division of Aid for the Aged, Circleville.

Mr. Owens served as a Lieutenant in the Army Air forces during World War II, in the Pacific theater of war. He is a senior in the College of Commerce at Ohio State University, Columbus, where he is a member of Phi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Upon returning from their wedding trip they will make their home on South Court street.

Miss Sapp Becomes Bride Of R. C. Owens

Nuptial Vows Exchanged In Springfield

Miss Frances Elizabeth Sapp, West Mill street, became the bride of Robert Creighton Owens, East Corwin street, on Monday afternoon at half after four.

The Rev. B. B. Fleming officiated for the ceremony before a background of verdant greenery in the parsonage of the Methodist church at Springfield. Appropriate pre-nuptial musical selections were presented preceding the ceremony. Rev. Mr. Fleming is a close friend of the Sapp family and formerly lived in Bainbridge, the previous residence of the Sapp family.

The bride is the daughter of Thomas Howard Sapp, Columbus, and the late Mrs. Sapp. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Owens, East Corwin street.

The former Miss Sapp chose for her wedding an afternoon gown of gray crepe, designed with a V neckline and modified sleeves. The draped bodice extended into deep folds to form a full graceful skirt. Silver nail heads sketched in the form of flowers studded the gown. She wore a small wine hat trimmed with a gray and white ostrich plume and a gray veil. Pinned at her shoulder was a burgundy orchid. To complete her costume she wore sterling silver jewelry, a gift from the bride groom, and carried wine accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland R. Siegwald, South Court street, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom were their only attendants. Mrs. Siegwald was gown in a deep fuchsia frock with accents of black. Her flowers were white gladiolas.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. Sapp was host at a reception and dinner in the Shawnee hotel, Springfield. Tall white tapers flanked a large three tiered wedding cake surrounded with maiden hair fern on the bride's table. The guest table was centered with a crystal bowl of pink asters, white gladiolas and sprigs of fern, and tall burning white tapers.

Guests at the wedding, reception and dinner besides the wedding party were John G. Boggs Sr., Miss Margaret Boggs, John G. Boggs, Jr., Mrs. W. P. Hartman, Mr. Owens, Miss Sapp Owens and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Moore, Circleville.

Both the new Mr. and Mrs. Owens were graduated from Circleville high school. The bride is affiliated with Sigma Phi Gamma sorority. At the present she is associated with the Division of Aid for the Aged, Circleville.

YANKEES SIT BACK TO WAIT ON NATIONALS

Boston's Loss Puts New York In Series; Brooklyn Gains As Cards Lose

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—The New York Yankees, having clinched the American League pennant by the somewhat inglorious method of backing into it, started pointing for the World Series today.

They have two precious weeks in which to nurse their ailing crimples back to top form, and to rest up George McQuinn, their veteran first baseman, and such other regulars as may feel the need of a brief vacation.

ASSUMING THAT Brooklyn will be New York's opponent—the lead of the Dodgers in the National League race was increased to 7½ games yesterday when the second-place Cardinals lost again to the Giants—the key man in the Yankees' skunk practice for the World Series will be Coach Chuck Dressen.

Dressen coached the Dodgers before coming to the Yanks, and will be able to give the New York players a complete fill-in on almost every Dodger.

Dressen, incidentally, is the first man ever to be with three different pennant winners in one city. He was with the Giants of 1933, the Dodgers of 1941 and the present Yankees.

During this year's post-season classic Dressen will be an invaluable aid to Bucky Harris, who qualified definitely as a "first year manager" in piloting the Yanks to a pennant as soon as he took over.

BUCKY'S FIRST year as the "boy manager" of the Washington Senators was 1924. He won the flag that year and repeated the following season.

This is the 15th pennant to be won by a Yankee team—most by any club in the modern era (since 1900). And in winning it they had more ups and downs than an elevator boy, until they trimmed the champion Red Sox in an important series and then started to click.

The flag was officially clinched when the Red Sox dropped the first game of a twin bill to the White Sox, 6 to 3, while the Yanks were being rained out. The Red Sox, now trying for runnerup honors, beat Chicago in the nightcap, 7 to 5.

BROOKLYN NOW needs only six wins to put away the Cardinals, who continued to look inept in losing again to the Giants, 10 to 5. Bill Rigney had a perfect day at bat for New York with five hits in as many times at bat. The Giants are only three games behind the third-place Boston Braves, whose Johnny Sain lost a 3-to-2 duel to Bob Chipman of the Chicago Cubs. Pittsburgh took seventh place away from the Phillies by trouncing them, 12 to 2, behind Kirby Higbe.

In night games, the Detroit Tigers strengthened their hold on second place in the American League by beating Washington, 7 to 2, and Cleveland nosed out the Philadelphia Athletics, 2 to 1, on a triple by George Metkovich and a single by Manager Lou Boudreau in the eleventh inning.

The condors inhabit regions 10,000 to 15,000 feet above sea level where they are usually seen in groups and where they breed. Condors do not make nests, but lay their eggs on the bare rocks. They descend to the plains for food, returning to their haunts after feeding. The condor soars to heights exceeding that of any other bird, and is often far above the clouds.

Homing pigeons have been known to carry messages over 800 miles.

Scheduled at 7:30 p. m. are Monroe and Perry township with Jackson and New Holland slated to clash at 9 p. m.

ROD SWINEHART HIGH ON BUCK LIST OF BACKS

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16—Rod Swinehart, the lean Wooster halfback, was definitely to be reckoned with in Ohio State's backfield plans today.

Swinehart, a virtual forgotten man last season, came into prominence last Saturday when he sparked on the "B" team in the Bucks' first full-dress scrimmage.

Coach Wes Fesler, however, was even more impressed with Rod's defensive work, branding him the best tackler he has discovered among his backs.

Swinehart's stock received an additional boost when trainer Ernie Biggs announced that Bob Brugge probably should be kept out of the Missouri game, Sept. 27. Brugge has a pulled leg muscle.

Jimmy Clark rates first call behind Brugge at left halfback, but Swinehart is now close behind on offensive and certain to see major action on defense.

Jerry Krall, fast-starting Toledo back, worked in formation yesterday for the first time since undergoing a knee operation during the Winter.

Physicians have pronounced the knee sound, but Fesler doesn't count on Jerry for immediate action. The same is true of halfback Mike Cannavino, who reported with a strained groin muscle and now is nursing a boil on his leg.

Tommy Phillips, who never quite lived up to expectations,

turned in his uniform yesterday and announced he would withdraw from school. Phillips was recognized as the team's best passer but was handicapped by lack of size and speed.

If a man breathed pure oxygen all the time he would die.

Boston's Loss Puts New York In Series; Brooklyn Gains As Cards Lose

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—The New York Yankees, having clinched the American League pennant by the somewhat inglorious method of backing into it, started pointing for the World Series today.

They have two precious weeks in which to nurse their ailing crimples back to top form, and to rest up George McQuinn, their veteran first baseman, and such other regulars as may feel the need of a brief vacation.

ASSUMING THAT Brooklyn will be New York's opponent—the lead of the Dodgers in the National League race was increased to 7½ games yesterday lost again to the Giants—the key man in the Yankees' skul practice for the World Series will be Coach Chuck Dressen.

Dressen coached the Dodgers before coming to the Yanks, and will be able to give the New York players a complete fill-in on almost every Dodger.

Dressen, incidentally, is the first man ever to be with three different pennant winners in one city. He was with the Giants of 1933, the Dodgers of 1941 and the present Yankees.

During this year's post-season classic Dressen will be an invaluable aid to Bucky Harris, who qualified definitely as a "first year manager" in piloting the Yanks to a pennant as soon as he took over.

BUCKY'S FIRST year as the "boy manager" of the Washington Senators was 1924. He won the flag that year and repeated the following season.

This is the 15th pennant to be won by a Yankee team—most by any club in the modern era (since 1900). And in winning it they had more ups and downs than an elevator boy, until they trimmed the champion Red Sox in an important series and then started to click.

The flag was officially clinched when the Red Sox dropped the first game of a twin bill to the White Sox, 6 to 3, while the Yanks were being rained out. The Red Sox, now trying for runnerup honors, beat Chicago in the nightcap, 7 to 5.

BROOKLYN NOW needs only six wins to put away the Cardinals, who continued to look inept in losing again to the Giants, 10 to 5. Bill Rigney had a perfect day at bat for New York with five hits in as many times at bat.

The Giants are only three games behind the third-place Boston Braves, whose Johnny Sain lost a 3-to-2 duel to Bob Chipman of the Chicago Cubs.

Pittsburgh took seventh place away from the Phillies by trouncing them, 12 to 2, behind Kirby Higbe.

In night games, the Detroit Tigers strengthened their hold on second place in the American League by beating Washington, 7 to 2, and Cleveland nosed out the Philadelphia Athletics, 2 to 1, on a triple by George Metkovich and a single by Manager Lou Boudreau in the eleventh inning.

TOP HORSES AT BEULAH; SEASON OPENS SATURDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16—With the best caliber of horses ever to race at Beulah Park slated to display their speed, the impending Fall meeting at the Grove City course Sept. 20-Oct. 18 promises to be a banner session.

Labeled the "tenth anniversary" meeting, since Beulah graduated into the mile, major track ranks in 1937, the Fall racing season has attracted stables from Detroit, Narragansett, Thistledown, Chicago, Dade Park, Hamilton, O., and elsewhere.

The Detroit contingent includes Al Wellman's 27-horse stable. Wellman was the champion trainer at Beulah both last Fall and in the Autumn of 1945.

The first patent for a shaving mug was granted May 1, 1860, to Thomas E. Hughes of Birmingham, Pa. From that time until 1940 a total of 94 U. S. patents were granted for shaving mugs, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Mostly freshmen and sophomores will be used on the reserve team.

ROD SWINEHART HIGH ON BUCK LIST OF BACKS

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16—Rod Swinehart, the lean Wooster halfback, was definitely to be reckoned with in Ohio State's backfield plans today.

Swinehart, a virtual forgotten man last season, came into prominence last Saturday when he sparked on the "B" team in the Bucks' first full-dress scrimmage.

Coach Wes Fesler, however, was even more impressed with Rod's defensive work, branding him the best tackler he has discovered among his backs.

Swinehart's stock received an additional boost when trainer Ernie Biggs announced that Bob Brugge probably should be kept out of the Missouri game, Sept. 27. Brugge has a pulled leg muscle.

Jimmy Clark rates first call behind Brugge at left halfback, but Swinehart is now close behind on offensive and certain to see major action on defense.

Jerry Krall, fast-starting Toledo back, worked in formation yesterday for the first time since undergoing a knee operation during the Winter.

Physicians have pronounced the knee sound, but Fesler doesn't count on Jerry for immediate action. The same is true of halfback Mike Cannavino, who reported with a strained groin muscle and now is nursing a boil on his leg.

Tommy Phillips, who never quite lived up to expectations,

turned in his uniform yesterday and announced he would withdraw from school. Phillips was recognized as the team's best passer but was handicapped by lack of size and speed.

If a man breathed pure oxygen all the time he would die.

at 11 a. m., will shift to the 10 a. m. time slot effective Sept. 29.

Joan Crawford has many interested sponsors for her recently cut ABC show, "Sound Stage for Joan Crawford." ...Frank Sinatra will head for New York following his first four Hollywood broadcasts for eight weeks of theatre and nifty dates.

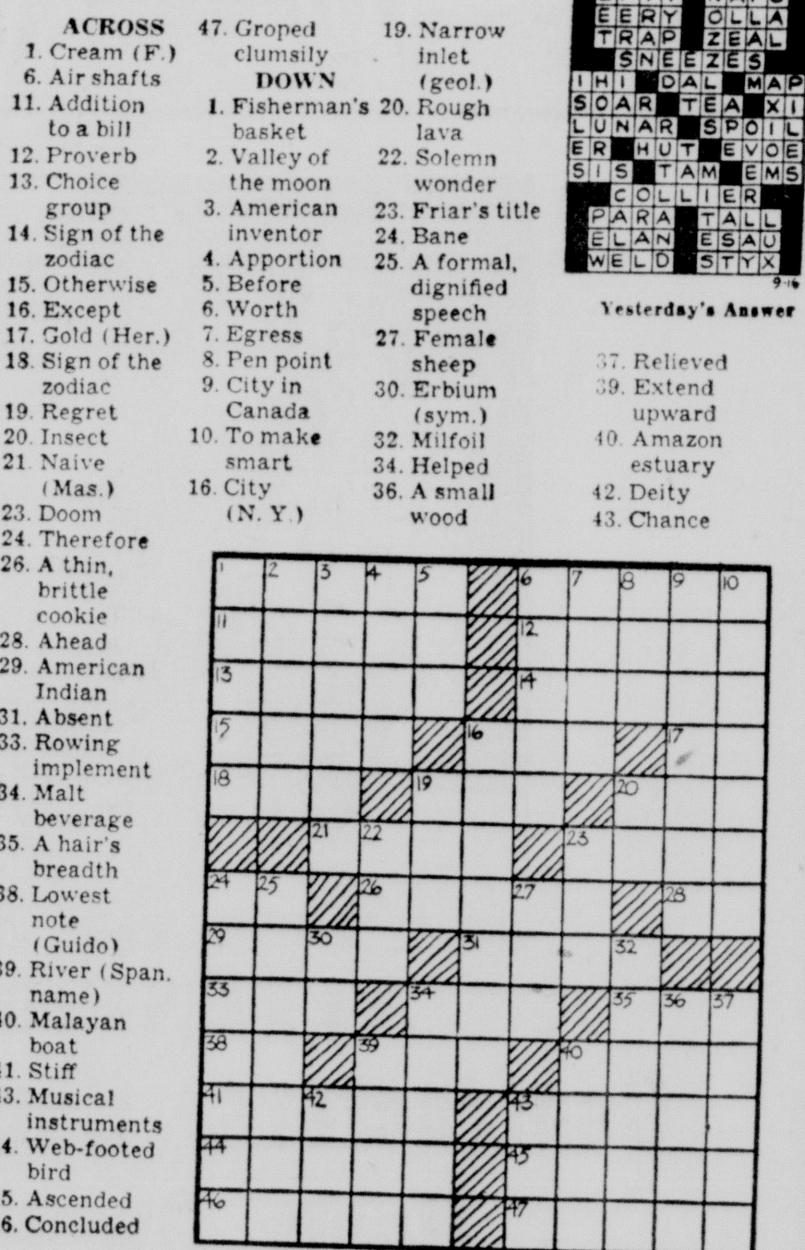

When Oscar Levant joins Al Jolson on the new Kraft Music Hall show Oct. 2, listeners will be wondering whether he'll be the same old sardonic Oscar, master of the snappy comeback, or, as columnist Earl Wilson recently expressed it, "a new, mellow, close-to-lovable Oscar." Current rumors say that he's changed and now goes out of his way to say nice things about people.

Producer Don Bernard's technical innovation in staging radio mystery shows—which he introduced for NBC's Peter Lorre Show, "Mystery in the Air," has already been copied by one thriller program, and other "who-dunit" producers have announced they'll try it in the fall. The new production wrinkle calls for isolation of the orchestra behind heavy curtains, permitting the musicians to play full blast even when filling in musical background for dialogue.

DeFord Bailey, harmonica wizard who was a featured regular on the NBC "Grand Ole Opry" for 15 years, returns for a guest appearance Sept. 20. Also on the same broadcast as a guest will be Clyde Moody, singer-banjoist-guitarist who is a famous interpreter of folk music. Songs which Moody has composed and recorded include "If I Had My Life to Live Over Again," "I Worship You," "Lonely Broken Heart," "If You Need Me I'll Be Around" and the new hit, "Shenandoah Valley."

Meredith Willson's second literary effort, "Talking People," which was published recently, has been received so well that the publisher is now asking the "Showroom" star for another book—this time on radio music.

War On Household Pests Urged In Circleville

'SWAT FLIES' DR. BLACKBURN URGES PUBLIC

Health Commissioner Urges Fight On Pests To Help Check Polio Spread

Plea to Circleville and Pickaway county residents to "swat the fly" vigorously during the interval before Jack Frost visits the community was voiced Tuesday by County Health Commissioner A. D. Blackburn.

Dr. Blackburn declared that war against flies is one effective method to curb the diseases.

Pickaway county now has eight recorded cases of infantile paralysis with all of the child victims under treatment at this time in the Children's hospital at Columbus.

Although the causes of poliomyelitis remain to be discovered by medical science, Dr. Blackburn pointed out, the ordinary house-fly is one of the suspects being viewed as carriers of the mysterious malady which leaves some victims crippled for life.

Scientific research, including numerous experiments, the health commissioner explained, already have indicated that the fly may be found guilty of spreading polio.

Campaigns already are in progress in Columbus, Akron and other Ohio cities to battle flies.

IN A TOUR of Circleville, including inspection of alleys, Dr. Blackburn said he found that as a whole the city was in pretty good shape insofar as precautions against flies is concerned. He added, however, that in a few neighborhoods it would be well to take further steps. He cited specifically that all garbage receptacles should be kept well covered to prevent access by flies.

By waging incessant warfare against the common house fly, the health commissioner said, considerable and valuable results may be achieved in the effort to hold communicable diseases to a minimum.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

A license was granted Saturday to Walter Henry Nelson, Jr., 26, supply officer, 718 South Court street, and Betty Jane Clifton, 809 North Court street.

War On Household Pests Urged In Circleville

'SWAT FLIES' DR. BLACKBURN URGES PUBLIC

Health Commissioner Urges Fight On Pests To Help Check Polio Spread

Plea to Circleville and Pickaway county residents to "swat the fly" vigorously during the interval before Jack Frost visits the community was voiced Tuesday by County Health Commissioner A. D. Blackburn.

Dr. Blackburn declared that war against flies is one effective method to curb the diseases.

Pickaway county now has eight recorded cases of infantile paralysis with all of the child victims under treatment at this time in the Children's hospital at Columbus.

Although the causes of poliomyelitis remain to be discovered by medical science, Dr. Blackburn pointed out, the ordinary house-fly is one of the suspects being viewed as carriers of the mysterious malady which leaves some victims crippled for life.

Scientific research, including numerous experiments, the health commissioner explained, already have indicated that the fly may be found guilty of spreading polio.

Campaigns already are in progress in Columbus, Akron and other Ohio cities to battle flies.

IN A TOUR of Circleville, including inspection of alleys, Dr. Blackburn said he found that as a whole the city was in pretty good shape insofar as precautions against flies is concerned. He added, however, that in a few neighborhoods it would be well to take further steps. He cited specifically that all garbage receptacles should be kept well covered to prevent access by flies.

By waging incessant warfare against the common house fly, the health commissioner said, considerable and valuable results may be achieved in the effort to hold communicable diseases to a minimum.
